ABOUT THE ARCHIVE

Political Extremism and Radicalism: Far-Right Groups in America is an extension of the Political Extremism and Radicalism program focusing specifically on far-right America with coverage concentrating more closely on white supremacist and nationalist groups in the U.S. These groups include the Ku Klux Klan, the National White People's Party (aka the American Nazi Party), Aryan Nations and others. The archive covers several topics that fall under the broader theme of right-wing America including nationalism, racism, anti-Semitism, Christian Identity, homophobia, political misinformation and conspiracy theories. This archive will be valuable to modern and contemporary history, politics, government studies, sociology, gender studies, African American studies and religious studies departments.

COLLECTIONS FROM RENOWNED LIBRARIES AND ARCHIVES ARE REPRESENTED:

University of California, Santa Barbara - Christian Identity and Far Right-Wing Politics

This collection consists of periodicals, pamphlets, programs, and other printed ephemera regarding American Christian conservative groups' philosophies as well as far right-wing politics and election propaganda. It includes both ephemera and periodicals through which researchers can explore the intersection of Christian conservatism and the far-right.

University of Iowa - Social Documents Collection

The Social Documents Collection contains a large accumulation of materials published by conservative organizations; groups generally considered to be to the right on the political spectrum. Far-Right Groups in America includes a number of pamphlets, publications, leaflets, correspondence and ephemera focusing specifically on material related to far-right groups that have been selected from the wider Social Documents Collection. Materials concern a range of right-wing and far-right thinking from Second Amendment gun rights and tax protest to anti-communist, racist, anti-Semitic, Neo-Confederate thinking and much more.

University of California, Davis - Walter Goldwater Radical Pamphlet Collection

The Library at the University of California, Davis established the Radical Pamphlet Collection in 1966 with a collection of pamphlets purchased from Walter Goldwater, a book dealer who specialized in radical politics, and who was also one of the first book dealers to specialize in African American Studies. Through the material in this collection researchers can explore the role that the far-right plays in the U.S., with titles authored by both those in support of and criticising far-right viewpoints, and which cover topics such as the Ku Klux Klan, communism, politics, racism and fascism.

Idaho State University - James Aho Collection

The James Aho Collection is comprised of a variety of materials documenting right-wing extremism in Idaho and the Pacific Northwest. Materials consist of printed matter, recordings, and ephemera with the bulk of the collection consisting of newsletters from various churches and organizations promoting their beliefs. Of particular interest is the collection of recorded sermons and interviews (hosted as audio files and transcripts) that provide an interesting window into the viewpoints and inner workings of far-right groups such as Aryan Nations.

Federal Bureau of Investigation

Files on Joseph McCarthy, Charles Lindbergh, Ezra Pound and the Posse Comitatus document the FBI's surveillance of influential right-wing thinkers and one extremist hate group. These fascinating materials will appeal to anyone interested in twentieth-century American social history as well as far-right extremism in America.
